

Camille Scherrer is a swiss designer. She likes to play at the intersection of technology and art, looking for new fields of investigation. She created her own universe inspired by the mountains where she grew up, animals, cable cars and old postcards. She graduated in 2008 at écal (university of art and design, Lausanne) in the visual communication - media & interaction design faculty. She had her diploma work awarded Best European Design Diploma (Talent exhibition, Design huis, Eindhoven). Recently her work has been exhibited and published internationally. Beside her art practice, she also teaches interaction design at HEAD in Geneva.
